Report of Board of Health.

TO THE SELECTMEN OF THE TOWN OF EPPING:

The Board of Health submit the following report for the year ending Feb. 15, 1898:

We believe there were more cases of typhoid fever in town during the Fall and early Winter than was necessary or profitable. We feel certain that good, plain, well cooked food is better for employe as well as employer, and far cheaper in the end.

When people universally clean their wells annually and stop trying to make one hole in the ground serve the double purpose of well and cess-pool there will be far less typhoid fever and better general health.

There were reported eighteen cases of scarlet fever, only one of which proved fatal.

Too much care cannot be exercised in dealing with this dread disease. Of mumps and measles there has been a profusion. Only a part of these cases have been reported to this Board; we believe, in some cases, because of the foolish dread of having a card posted, in other cases through neglect, because no physician was employed.

In the future all cases of contagious disease, where a physician is not attending, must be reported to this Board by some member of the family in which it occurs, or by other persons having knowledge of the same. All persons having or liable to carry any one of such diseases must conform to the law and rules in such cases provided, or be liable to the prescribed consequences.

The schools were closed at the suggestion of this Board, while it seemed necessary.

We have burned a few volumes belonging to the Public Library which we did not dare risk again in circulation. The library, still closed, will be re-opened as soon as all danger is considered past.

TO THE TRUSTEES OF EPPING FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY :

The business at the library the past year has been about the same as the year previous.

The number of books loaned being 4,058. The whole number of cards issued, 500. Amount received in fines, $9.67.

We acknowledge the receipt of books by donation from the following persons : 1 vol. from May A. Prescott, 2 vols. each from Mrs. L. Geyer, Lillian V. Reed and "A Friend," 4 vols. from the State.

The Trustees having purchased 94, makes the total number added the past year 105. The whole number of volumes in the library at this date, 826.

December 18th the Board of Health ordered that no more books be given out, on account of the dangerous character of the prevailing sickness among the school children. No books have been given out since that date, and all books that were in any way exposed to disease have been kept by themselves ; some will be destroyed, and the whole library will be fumigated and every precaution taken to prevent the further spread of disease, as advised by the Board of Health.

As soon as thought prudent the library will be re-opened, due notice of which will be given.

GEORGE G. PRESCOTT, Librarian.

In looking over twenty School Registers to procure the figures for the foregoing tables and other statistics, it is pleasing to note in credit to the teachers that most of the blanks have been properly filled.

There was one teacher, however, who left her summary all blank, but she has left town and her services will not be required the second time.

If many such cases occur the School Board will do well to pay more attention to the following notice, which may be found on the first page of the School Registers :

NOTICE.

WHEREVER this Register is officially adopted, by any Town, City, County, or State, let it be understood that twenty dollars of the teacher's pay for services will be withheld until the blanks of this book (except those pertaining to the "Scholarship Record," the filling of which may be at the option of the local superintendent) are all filled as designed.

We find the Roll of Perfect Attendance to be much smaller than that of previous years, which may be due to the prevalent rainy weather and to the epidemic diseases, which have also been the cause of successive postponements of our village schools, so their Winter terms not being completed cannot receive a place in this report.

This school year has given us much satisfaction. The work has been in the hands of experienced teachers and they are to be commended for their faithful and successful labors.

Our school work has been somewhat interrupted by sickness, yet on the whole we congratulate ourselves on the results secured.

But we believe that the good people here desire larger returns in the way of training for their children, and if we had another school for the smallest scholars we should be on the way to a better system of instruction.

The Intermediate and Primary schools in the spring have about one hundred and fifteen scholars, and in the fall about the same number. Now if all of these smallest scholars could be in one room with two terms a year it would relieve the two schools mentioned, give the teachers more time with the upper grades, hence better fitting for the High School and the whole system be greatly improved. We hope that this matter may be considered at the next annual meeting.

ENTHUSIASM FOR THE WORK.

The blessed privilege is before us of moulding and shaping the young mind for service in the future. As a rule with our teachers there is an earnest purpose to rouse the children to do their best work every day, but this is not quite true of our entire number. What may be seen here in a few of our schools is true in other places, yet we feel that a little more life in the service on the part of the teacher would result in waking up some of our scholars from their slumbering condition. It is said that nothing is so contagious as enthusiasm; it moves stones, it charms brutes and inspires the scholar for service in the school room. We have seen teachers who seemed to be delighted because they could move their scholars with the rattan, but if we can move them with the touch of enthusiasm for this grand, far-reaching work in the school, we may feel that we are laying up treasures in their lives. Now we are sure that a few grains of this enthusiasm, well directed in some of our schools, would result in a glorious harvest.

WE NEED THE HEARTY CO-OPERATION OF THE PARENTS.

It is said that parents should always sustain the teacher in maintaining his authority in the school. That authority is supreme and may never be trifled with by the pupil. Unconditional obedience in the school, as well as in the family, is the rule, and the teacher has a right to expect the cordial support of all his patrons in enforcing that rule. The best good of the child, as well as the success of the school, depends upon this co-operation. Parents are too often ready to listen to the complaints of their children, and to sympathize with them in rebellion against the authority of the school. It would be better never to allow such fault-finding, never to criticise, but always to sustain the teacher in the presence of children. If they can have the encouragement of parents in their recklessness at school they will become bold and defiant, and will paralyze, if they do not destroy, the influence and efforts even of the best teachers. If all parents should take this view of the subject, and so co-operate and sustain their teachers, our public schools would be vastly more efficient and useful than they have ever been. Yet we find, notwithstanding all that is said upon this subject, parents standing in their own light as it relates to this matter, and bringing down upon themselves a sad experience.

ATTENDANCE.

We may understand, by a moment's reflection, that in order to make the most out of the time that is given us for school work, we must be in our places every day attending to our studies. Many here in our town see clearly the importance of this idea and act upon it, while others are indifferent or careless, and for this thing and that the child is taken away from his work in the school room, and finds, at the close of the month, that he has lost four or five days; this, indeed, is not the best way, for it hinders the progress of the child. The teachers are interested in having the scholars in the school every day, and many efforts have been put forth by them to secure this end, but they have had their seasons of discouragement. A company of workmen were engaged in tunnelling a mountain; they worked day after day and week after week; at length they became very much discouraged and had half a mind to give up in despair, when one day they were greatly surprised to hear a pick on the other side and presently light was shining through. When the teachers can feel that the parents are working on the other side, and are indeed at work, the attendance of the scholars will be secured.

INTEREST IN THE STUDIES.

The parents may help the teachers very much in their work by interesting themselves in the studies that the children have in school. Within a few months we have made changes in books, so to-day we have some of the best in the market. Why not ask the children about these books and about their lessons day by day and inform ourselves in reference to the work, so as to come into vital contact with the life of the school. If there is trouble in the school it is quickly reported and we look into the matter; why not keep informed of the work done that touches the life of the children, and then encourage them faithfully to prepare every lesson assigned them and to cherish a deep interest in every school exercise as a means to the end in view; this indeed would be a source of encouragement to the teachers.

VISITING THE SCHOOLS.

We are very much gratified that so many make their annual visit to our schools; but we have noticed that this Public day is made to answer for the whole year with many. Now if the parents could visit the schools two or three times a term and give about half an hour to the exercises in the school room, we believe that they would help us in our work. It is said that these occasional visits will do more than anything else can do to rouse and encourage the teachers and to inspire the pupils with zeal and earnestness in the discharge of their school duties. Such visits have a decided influence over the deportment of the school. They tend to cultivate pride of character, school pride and self respect in the pupils, and to check all tendencies to disorder and rebellion.

May the thoughts here presented meet with the hearty co-operation of all the parents for the welfare and success of our public schools.
